Hataka HTK-AS101	No Scale	"Modern Swedish AF paint set vol. 1" Early Swedish AF jet fighters (incl. Saab 29 Tunnan) wore overall natural metal livery and were to be camouflaged only in case of war. In early 1960s tests were carried out to find appropriate colours for Saab 35 Draken, as the standard olive green (Green Drab, 325M) commonly used at that time (incl. on Saab 32 Lansen) was considered too light. In 1964 the "2-colour" camouflage (328M + 438...	Paint, Acrylic 17ml	Catalogue	£18.08	2
Hataka HTK-AS102	No Scale	RAF Bomber Command paint set. Standard colours of RAF bomber force during WW2 Starting from 1939 majority of RAF Bomber Command aircraft wore a version of Temperate Land Scheme with either Sky "Type S" (light bombers, mid-1940 to mid-1942) or Night (heavy bombers, 1939 till mid-1942) undersides. Unlike the Fighter Command, which after 1941 switched to more offensive camouflage, the Bomber Command stuck to original "sand and...	Paint, Acrylic 17ml	Catalogue	£18.08	3
